FORMATION OF GLEE CLUB CERTAIN MEET; AGAIN MONDAY NIGHT

Formation of a men's glee club in Janesville to give public concerts and usually semi-annual meetings held at the Gazette office last evening. An informal discussion of the proposed organization resulted in the selection of a committee consisting of eight men to promote interest in the plan and to secure a larger attendance at the next meeting which it was agreed should be held at the Gazette office at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening.

All those in any way interested in glee club work are invited to attend this meeting. Personal solicitation by a member of the committee will not be necessary before a person may attend. A permanent organization will doubtless be effected Monday night so that practices may begin the latter part of the month if possible.

CLOTHING IS WANTED FOR POLISH WOMEN

Four hundred pounds of clothing and considerable sum of money to be sent to the half clad and starving women in Poland have been received by the First Lutheran church in the week's drive being waged by the Lutheran churches of the nation, announced T. C. Thorson, pastor, this morning.

The amount of men's clothing received far exceeds that for the women, he said in making a plea for more clothing and money contributions before the end of the drive Saturday. There are no children in Poland under 5 and 10 years of age, he pointed out, saying that the children of the war years have died at birth, because of lack of nourishment.

The clothing will be shipped from the local churches to Madison Monday. From there it will be sent to New York, thence to Danzig, from which port distribution is guaranteed by the U. S. minister.

BAPTISTS ELECT OFFICERS; PIERSON IS VICE-PRESIDENT

An amusing feature of the occasion was an impromptu song given by the five small sons of Rev. Raymond Pierson, who were smuggled upon the platform by the presiding chairman, E. J. Steinberg, unknown to the pastor.

They were introduced to the audience by five preachers of the future. They sang lustily a song of their own choosing.

Banquet On for Tonight. At 5 o'clock today will be held a banquet especially for the young people, although that term includes every one under 30 years of age. It is expected that about 75 will be present. It will be held in the Congregational church with O. M. Peugh, Milwaukee, as toastmaster. This evening there will be a stereopticon lecture at the Baptist church, by Paul Hackett on the home mission field, and an address by S. J. Skevington, Milwaukee. The orchestra from the School for the Blind will furnish the music. The public is cordially invited to this meeting which will be the last session of the conference.

That a living wage should be paid to the Baptist ministers of the state, was one fact brought out yesterday at the Baptist state convention by the report of D. W. Hulbert, secretary of the state work. He noted the appalling fact that 45 percent of the churches of the state did not raise the sum of $500 for the year's expenses.

There were only 72 churches which had more than a hundred members and only 62 which raised more than $1,200 a year. This placed Wisconsin in the class of a mission field where workers and money was badly needed. This need was augmented it was shown, by the new districts where settlers were going in and had no church services.

38 Churches in State. He noted that there were 53 churches in the state with less than 80 members, and many others with none. Among the problems connected with the field work was that of getting live pastors who can preach, organize and be a real power in the community in which they are placed. "We need field workers, we need a state evangelizer, we need a woman for social welfare work and community service, we need pastors at large, we need an educational director, and we need a woman to give her whole time to the department of missionary education in the state," said Mr. Hulbert.

Missionary Work Revived. Yesterday was missionary day in the convention. Rev. G. C. Albom, Wisconsin, gave a brief resume of the home mission work as it might be seen from an airplane. These he outlined briefly as those connected with the American Indian, with the negro, with the immigrant, with the frontiers in the west, with Latin America and in the maze of people crowded into the tenement districts of the great cities.

Mrs. R. A. Ashworth, Milwaukee, gave a resume of the foreign field, with a survey of the situation from a Baptist standpoint.

Hackett Gives Lecture. In the evening a stereopticon lecture was given by Paul R. Hackett on the foreign field of mission work. Mr. Hackett has been stationed at Burmah and has recently been in China and so was familiar with many of the pictures which he showed. Schools, hospitals, and individual workers in the fields were shown. The fact was impressed on the audience that one half of the world today is without a Christ. The greatest problem of the day, he said, was to get the right type of young men and women to go out into the field work. The main address of the evening session was given by Hugh A. Heath, New York city, a member of the board of promotion which is one of the new administrative bodies of the society. Miss Margaret McCallum and Mrs. Alice Thomas sang a solo at the conclusion of the church. He outlined the plan made by the denomination in its annual convention held last May in Denver, and especially described the workings of the board of promotion which is one of the new administrative bodies of the society. A COMMUNITY JOB.

The opportunity for solving the problems which confront our community and thus aid in bringing order out of after-war chaos was impressively brought before the members' council of the local Chamber of Commerce by Colvin R. Brown, chief of the organization service bureau, Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

There is a whole lot of food for thought in his statement that, "Some of the problems which confront our country could be solved if we could break them up into as many little pieces as there are efficiently organized communities, leaving it to each to do its bit."

We have an efficiently organized and efficiently conducted Chamber of Commerce. We have the problems confronting us that every community in the nation has. We are no different from the rest. Our duty then is to show a community spirit and solve our problems to the advantage of the whole and not for the benefit of a few, thus doing our share in bringing to a sane and safe foundation the framework upon which our future must be built.

Co-operation in all lines of endeavor in our community will give us strength because we will benefit from any progress we make toward better conditions. We have enough work before us to keep us busy for many years and upon the thoroughness with which we finish each job we tackle will depend our future prosperity and happiness.

Already the local Chamber of Commerce has shown that it has the facilities to lead in community work. It has been unselfish in its efforts to aid in bringing about solutions of problems which arise as we enter more deeply into industrial development. The work which has been done has been freed from a spirit of partisanship and the feeling that the organization is functioning for all the people of this community has been strongly intrenched in the minds of those who have impartially watched its efforts.

With such an organization, then, let us look around our door step and see what is needed. When we have determined that, then let all pitch in and work for those things which will bring benefit to the greatest number. We can do that successfully. If we do, we are "doing our bit for the nation."

Mr. Brown emphasized the fact that the functions of the Chamber of Commerce were not confined to our local municipal boundaries, but reached out and covered our retail trade territory. That is true and it should be the endeavor of the chamber to promote the feeling of co-operation between our business men and those who reside in that trade zone.

THE PRESIDENT'S ILLNESS

President Wilson's critical condition does not serve to win him any sympathy or compassion from his opponents in the senate, who do not seem to feel that he is entitled to a truce.

Now that he can no longer fight for the peace treaty and the league of nations, it is safe to say that his political opponents about the country are disposed to give him a chance to recover before renewing the hammer and tongs battle that the president invited by his lone handed policy in making peace. That is sportsmanlike and American.

In Washington it is different. Rumors of the ugliest character are afloat, and there is talk of gulling Dr. Grayson before a senate committee, and of forcibly unseating the president to make room for Vice-President Marshall. They say, or insinuate, that the president is insane, that he has had a stroke of apoplexy, that he has hardening of the arteries, that he is particularly paralyzed. Senator Moses writes to a friend that the president will never again be a factor in large affairs. The insidious effect of such rumors is to shake public confidence in the president, and rob him of his standing and influence.

The conservative estimate of the president's condition is that he has not suffered any strokes or lesions, but that he may unless given a chance to get well. A correspondent of the Philadelphia Public Ledger writes his paper:

"The truth is that most of the rumors of the gravity of the president's illness spring from the senate. In the senate are many persons who hate and distrust the president and who have talked themselves into the belief that the country is the victim of a conspiracy to palm off a permanently disabled man upon the nation as president."

"The Moses letter was typical. The president had hardly returned to Washington and the favorite first blush theory of those who think only the worst of everything that happens at the white house, namely, that the president was shamming illness to obtain sympathy, was hardly abandoned than the story that the president was insane swept through the senate. This story was credited to Senator Moses, who has since apparently changed his diagnosis from insanity to apoplexy."

"The utter lack of sympathy at the capitol with an executive who has broken down in the public service and the lack of caution shown in exhibiting it, better than anything else, indicates the extraordinary state of mind existing in congress."

"The public has been rather slow to express an opinion about the president's trouble, in view of the hazy nature of information given, but the point has been reached when all fair men will wish the rumor-mongers to check their garrulity."

COME ON IN

In the present recruiting campaign, over four hundred newspapers in Wisconsin, civilian committees, four minute speakers, and ministers are cooperating to bring knowledge of the advantages of a short term enlistment in the navy to young men and their parents.

"A two year cruise in the navy to my mind would be a distinctly valuable part of the education of every youth in the land, no matter what his financial circumstances," declared Commander Eriz, in charge of navy recruiting in the Wisconsin-Michigan district.

"The travel to the farthest parts of the earth is an experience which, outside of navy men who travel on battleships, only a few millionaires ever get. I do not suppose one person in five thousand knows Hong Kong, the Admiralty Islands, Hawaii, or the different ports in the Levant."

"A battleship is truly a floating school. The teachers are naval officers. Besides the regular classes, there are special classes on all ships for ambitious youths who wish to prepare for Annapolis. I give my hearty support

THE LITTLE OLD HOUSE

The little old house and the little old street,
Where lived old-fashioned people who'd smile when we'd meet,
Oh, how I'd like to go back there once more,
With the mother I watch for her boy at the door,
And the faithful old dog who for me always kept alert
For my whistle whenever he slept.

The little old house of my boyhood was plain,
It was battered and scarred by the sun and the rain;
But its walls rang with laughter and there I may say
Was all that life offers of comfort today.
There we had meals that a king would delight
And friends round about us and sweet sleep at night.

In my little old room overlooking the shed,
I dreamed splendid dreams when my prayers had been said;
I gazed at the stars and I longed for the time
When the hills of the world I could venture to climb;
And far in the distance I thought I could see
The house of contentment that some day would be.

Oh, little I knew of life's battles back then,
And little I guessed of the sorrows of men;
But that old-fashioned house and that old-fashioned street
Were the best of all things that I could meet.

With all that I needed of joy was complete—
And in vain comes the longing to go back once more
To that house with the mother on watch at the door.

RETURNING ITALIANS SHOW WEAKNESS OF U. S. LAWS.

The vanguard of the host of Italians who sailed with their families and their savings for their native land as speedily as possible after the armistice was signed returned to New York last week, on the steamship Dante Alighieri. There were 300 of them, all traveling steerage and they prophesied that their disappointed countrymen would fill westbound ships for months to come.

Turbulent Italy, they declared, has no place today for thrifty sons returning from foreign shores. Food, rent, clothes and fuel are at prohibitive prices, they said, and profiteers throng on every side to pounce upon the unwary.

This news item might equally have applied to any one of the southern nations of Europe from which our immigrants have come for the past decade. It points to a sinister menace that is becoming clearer to those Americans who have eyes to see. It means that Americanization, as applied to many of our foreign-born citizens, is a flat failure.

Aside from the fact that less than ten percent of these same immigrants even go through the form of taking out citizenship papers; aside from the fact that more than one-half of the workmen in our fundamental industries, iron, steel and coal, are foreigners, there remains the bitter truth that we have a huge and undigested alien population within our boundaries, which has come here for what there is in it, and is interested only in what it can get out of our country, and eager to return to home lands with its earnings at the first possible moment.

Theodore Roosevelt said, "Unless we are thorough going Americans and unless our patriotism is part of the very fibre of our being, we can neither serve God nor take our own part. Whatever may be the case in an infinitely remote future, at present no people can render any service to humanity unless as a people they feel an intense sense of national cohesion and solidarity." The man who loves other nations as much as he does his own, stands on a par with the man who loves other women, as much as he does his own wife. The United States can accomplish little for mankind, save in so far as within its borders it develops an intense spirit of Americanism."

"Gee, Mal! Why Waste a Penny?"

Bureau of Missing Persons

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director
Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.

New York, Oct. 16.—If you feel that you must run away from home, don't come to New York. Of course, if you are just planning a little trip to spite the family, it isn't so bad, except that the city usually sees to it that you end by spiting yourself. But if you wish to drop completely and quietly out of sight, don't come here. The bureau of missing persons is certain to find you and report your whereabouts.

The old days when a man could disappear as mysteriously in New York as he could in a quicksand are gone forever. Now it is the worst place in the country to hide; it is so highly organized to find you, even if you are no longer a safe means of losing your identity. Some one is certain to come along, investigate the laundry number on your collar or shirt, and succeed in clearing up the mystery.

About a year ago, for example, the body of a young Italian was found in a thick strip of woods on the outskirts of the city. It was obviously a case of suicide on the part of a man who obviously wished to conceal his identity. Doubtless with much trouble he had succeeded in doing so, but he left marks from his clothing. But one clue remained—a small brass tag on a ribband, which was turned in to the bureau of missing persons. The man was contained closed when only the other day an Italian came into the office of the bureau, hunting for his missing brother. Some instinct led him to the bureau, and he showed the curious brass tag and show it to the visitor.

He knew the tag. "That's it," cried the Italian, as soon as he saw it. "That is my brother's." But this is an insignificant example of the bureau's identification talents compared to a case which happened a couple of years ago, which is still the prize exhibit of the office. This is a wax model of a man's face and head built on the basis of a few pieces of skull which were dug up by a burglar who had stolen a man's skull by an axe. Through this model of the bureau of missing persons succeeded in identifying the man as the murderer and in apprehending the murderer. The murderer could not be convicted, however, because of that law which provides that if a murder must be produced as evidence that murder has been committed. The few pieces of skull were not considered sufficient.

The identification of unknown dead persons, or of persons picked up unconscious about the city, of which there are, on an average, 150 cases a month, is so highly systematized that it is relatively easy. The bureau succeeds in 95 percent of its cases. It is not a matter of scientific deduction; it is a matter of common sense, of a keen eye, and of a few small articles, of which laundry marks are the most important. The bureau has a file of cards in its office which contains the record of every laundry mark in Manhattan.

"See this collar," said one of the detectives, the other morning, as he examined this file. He held up a soiled collar, which contained a few inexplicable hieroglyphics in the center. "Now look here," he turned to the same mark in the file.

Collar Told Tales
"Whose collar is that?" inquired the visitor curiously. "A missing person's." "Yes, he's missing all right," replied the detective, "but they'll find him." It's a bank holdup case. Besides laundry marks, the bureau also relies extensively on marks in shoes and upon the numbers found on false teeth. Fingerprints also help in many cases. Unlabeled marks are quickly identified by other means, his fingerprints are always taken and compared with those on file in the army, navy and criminal records.

Much to the relief of the police department, many criminals are identified in this manner. Often a man picked up dead on the sidewalk turns out to be a prominent second-story man, who has called a trifle too much on his agility and has fallen off a roof. One man killed by a motor-truck not long ago turned out to be a notorious criminal who had been recently released a few minutes before from Blackwell's Island.

"If we could only have legislation passed requiring everybody to have his fingerprints taken," declared one of the detectives of the bureau, "we would have no trouble in identifying anybody." "Do you know," added one of the policemen, "that the average woman cannot tell you what her child looks like? And that the average married man coming here looking for his missing wife cannot tell you what color eyes she has? We get photographs whenever possible, because we find that the average man doesn't know his own wife's face." 13,000 Cases Handled

During the past year the bureau of missing persons has handled over 13,000 cases. This is a great increase over the number handled the year before, due to the widespread restlessness occasioned by the war. The majority of these are young people, 65 percent of them males, who ran away from home. New York not only has a big runaway problem within its own limits, but it appears to attract most of the wanderlusts from other cities. It never has less than two thousand of such strangers thrust upon its streets every year.

These cases the bureau divides roughly into four groups: The wilful runaways, who come here to escape the consequences of their conduct at home, and who constitute a difficult social problem, because they cannot always be returned. Sometimes the policewomen employed by the bureau, who are really social workers with police badges, have to decide that girls and boys of this class be permitted to remain here and work out their own complicated destinies.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY K. MOULTON

ENOUGH—THAT'S ALL.
I do not care for millions—
A cross to be—
A naughty king of France,
Like Morgan or John D.
I simply want of riches
In weight to match my heft—
Enough to pay the coal men
And have a dollar left.

I do not long for oodles
Of stock and bonds and such;
I scorn the blight of Mammon—
His cursed cackling touch.
I only want of fortune
Enough of toadskin bright
To settle with the meat man
And leave a "plunk" in sight.

You do not hear me sobbing
For wealth in wholesome lots—
The kind that's gained by scheming.
By fony, frozen pie in pots—
Count me with those that money
Of sense has not bereft.
Let me but pay the gas man
And have my wallet left.

THE FORMULA OF LIFE.
(The same being contributed by one of our brightest correspondents.)

Love a little, spurn a little, give a little, earn a little, cry a little, chaff a little, sigh a little, work a little, play a little, pray a little.
Grin a little, scowl a little, chin a little, growl a little, use a little, take a little, lose a little, make a little, run a little, lag a little, pun a little, brag a little.
Walk a little, rear a little, breathe a little, sleep a little, grieve a little, hope a little, prate a little, hope a little.

Outside of the fact that "breath" and "grieve" do not rhyme, we think this is a blamed good poem.

A fool there was and she made her prayer

Even as you and I,
To a jug, a drop and a tank of air.
We called him the gink who didn't care.
But the fool, she thought he was on
Even as you and I.

Prohibition Mine Pie: The kickless mine pie has been a problem for the cooks to solve for the coming year. One of the most attractive ingredients of the mine pie will be tabooed. The plan now is to have all the mine pie made in Maine. It is not thought probable that the prohibitionists will ever be able to make Maine dry, although the rest of the country is a Sahara. Maine has had prohibition so long.

The Y. M. C. A. needs no introduction to Janesville people. It has formed a part of the civic life of the city. It has been the moulder of character of many hundreds of young men who have passed through its doors. It has been a home and supplied many of the home surroundings to young men who were away from the parental fireside. Its share in the war work is still vivid in the memory of all. Even less than one year ago when the long line of troop trains went rumbling through Janesville loaded with the sons and brothers on their way to the great training camps, the doors of the "Y" were always open to these splendid boys, to serve them food, to afford them comfort, to give the hand of welcome and wish God-speed and a safe return to those who had left all behind and in many cases had seen home for the last time. The Janesville Y. M. C. A. has been tried many times and has never yet failed. The Y. M. C. A. is really a home for young boys and men—a place where the moral atmosphere is clean. It is a place which furnishes amusement in the form of games, such as billiards, pool, basketball, bowling and volley ball; where athletic games are played furnishing clean wholesome contests that mean much in the development of muscles as well as character. Its tables are covered with current magazines and newspapers. There are writing desks with stationery. There are secretaries always on duty, whose work in a way corresponds to that of a clerk or manager of a fine big hotel. Janesville is a rapidly growing city and needs a growing Y. M. C. A. The Y. M. C. A. realizes that character is either made or lost between the time when the whistle blows at night and bed time and it is between whistle time and bed time that the "Y" is of the greatest usefulness. Now again, if your boy goes away from home and he lands in the "Y" and makes that his headquarters, you need give yourself no further worry for you know he is all right. Is that not so? No what does the "Y" need? Two things, your influence and some of your money, for both memberships and maintenance. "Why, I thought the "Y" had a campaign a year or two ago?" It did, but it now needs $21,165.00 more. Since the last campaign another lot has been purchased for future growth, equipment and repairs have been added to the extent of $10,000.00.

There is no secret about the "Y" budget. What the Directors know, YOU should know. This is only one of four advertisements which will appear in the Gazette. This advertisement will give in detail what the money is needed for and how it is proposed that it be spent.

The sum looks like a large one, but Mr. Steiner, the new, wide-awake general secretary, says it is needed to make the "Y" as useful as it should be. Janesville has the habit of doing big things and doing them magnificently well, and is not stingy, and we do not think Mr. Steiner is going to be disappointed.

The following is the statement in detail:

Back in Concord's office, while the agreement was being drawn, Irene was possessed of a consuming desire to consult with Dave Eiden. She was uneasy about the transaction in which her mother proposed so precipitately to invest the last part of their little fortune. "I think I would hesitate, mother," she cried. "If you buy this house we will have only a few thousand left. And I will sell it again—when I get my price."

"It is as your mother says," Concord interjected. "There are very rapid increases in value. I should not be surprised if you should be offered an advance of ten thousand dollars on this place before fall."

"There must be an end somewhere," Irene murmured weakly.

But her mother was writing a check. "I shall give you five thousand dollars now," she said, "and the balance when you give me the deed, or whatever it is. That is the proper way, isn't it?"

"Well, it's done," said Irene with an uneasy laugh which her excitement pitched a little higher than she had intended.

In an adjoining room Dave Eiden heard that laugh, and it stirred some remembrance in him. Instantly he connected it with Irene Hardy. The truth was Irene Hardy had been in the background of his mind during every waking hour since Bert Morrison had dropped her bombshell upon him. And now that voice—

Dave had no plan. He simply walked into Concord's office. His eye took in the little group and the mind behind caught something of its portent.

OLD MEN AND OLD WOMEN ARE MAKING GOOD

Hundreds of men and women well along in years have taken a most remarkable new lease on life; are up and doing more than ever before and are enjoying it not asking favors of anyone.

There is no secret about this. Every man and woman past the prime of life can come back strong, look young, and feel young in a short time if they will follow the laws of nature.

Old people THINK they are worn out because of age, and they feel that way. This is all wrong. One of our leading doctors says that looking and feeling old is due to lack of iron and phosphates in the blood and nerves. When people are young, they have a good supply. As they grow older and draw on this reserve, they begin to run down unless they are wise enough to recharge their blood and nerves with Phosphated Iron.

Continuing, the doctor said, "Every man and woman along in years can make more strong, keen, healthy and alert, enjoying life's pleasures again if they will simply renew their blood with Iron and Phosphates."

Phosphated Iron makes new, red blood, strengthens the nerves, rebuilds energy, recharges endurance and increases the strength of weak or old people one hundred percent in 2 weeks' time. Thousands of run-down old people who were called all the while have surprised their friends with an astonishing return of health, strength and vitality simply by taking Phosphated Iron.

Phosphated Iron is put up in capsules, only don't take inferior capsules. For sale by Smith Drug Co., and leading druggists everywhere.

ALL-STARS WIND UP SUCCESSFUL SEASON; WIN 13 OF 19 GAMES

Janesville's famous Junior baseball club—the Janesville All-Stars—has just wound up another most successful season and prospects for next year's team are already being discussed with the re-election of Charles Bick as captain, Arthur Bick as manager, and Puellemann as treasurer. A committee consisting of Prox, Crowley and Grasslin has been appointed to purchase sweaters for all members of the 1919 team.

The Stars finished the season with a percentage of .554, having won 13 of the 19 games played.

The same team was in the field as in previous years with the exception of the addition of Prox, an infielder, and Stevens, a catcher. Stevens was acquired as a regular catcher with "Crowley when Wall gave up the battery job to become an outfielder.

The pitching staff of this year was composed of Ted Hager, lanky right-hander, and one time master of the "foam ball," and "Gave" Bick, southpaw, the youngest member of the team.

Hager in percentage, winning six and losing two games, with an average of .750; while Hager's average was .526, he having won seven and lost four games.

Hager Puts 75.

Out of the 482 batters who faced Hager during the season, 102 secured hits, while 46 runs were scored. Hager issued 16 passes and struck out 75 men.

Out of the 235 men who faced Bick, 55 registered hits, 21 scored runs, 74 were struck out and 14 secured walks. Hager started the season, finishing 11 and 10, and was finished 7. Each pitcher was knocked out of the box twice.

For catchers the Stars had Crowley and Stevens. The former is a wizard at catching but his peg to second is weak. Crowley was the most consistent hitter in the team, finishing with an average of .473. Stevens, secured late in the season, was found to be a fair hitter and an all-around catcher. Much is expected of him next year.

Puellemann, at short, proved himself to be the fastest man on the infield. He was a better runner than any other, but more errors were chalked up against him this year than in previous seasons. He was also weak with his bat, being unable to hit the ball.

His mates predict he will be near the top of the list in both fielding and batting next year.

Art Marko, covering first base, is a good stocker and an accurate fielder. When he improves so he can stop a fast ground ball it will be hard to find a first baseman to beat him.

McGinley, at second base, was the most reliable man on the infield this season, coming through with the least errors of any member of the inner wall. He is also a good hitter, pounding the horseshoe for an average of .290. While not as fast a fielder as Puellemann, he is more reliable.

At third base Grasslin performed valuable services during the season. Just closed Grasslin is a good fielder; has a fine peg to second, and generally hits in the pinches, but he is slow in coming up on the ball.

Next year the Stars hope to build up their infield to twice the speed it displayed this year.

Babecek, in left field, is claimed to be the fastest and most reliable left fielder in the city. Although not a heavy hitter, he showed great improvement during the season, his average jumping near .300.

Wall, in right field, is the fastest man in the outfield, and a fair hitter. Zahn, in center field, although not as fast as his two mates, manages to get under nearly every ball hit his way.

Crowley Best Hitter.

Grat, who played in the outfield the early part of the season, handed in his resignation in mid-season, and it was accepted. Whether he will do a uniform next year is not known at this time.

Prox, who was secured to fill the vacancy, showed up well in the few games he played. He was used as utility man and showed he was reliable in any position, as well as being a good stocker.

The Stars plan to build up the fastest team in the section in 1920. They wish it known that they are not a professional but purely amateur team.

Hitting honors for the 1919 season were captured by Crowley with an average of .473, while Marko secured the greatest number of hits—19 out of 50 chances. McGinley registered 30 runs out of 73 times at bat. Babecek leads in the number of sacrifice hits with nine. Marko and Hager divided walking, getting 12 each.

Crowley was hit by pitched balls four times, while Bick and Stevens were the only members of the club who didn't get "beamed."

McGinley knocked out seven doubles, Crowley hit three triples, Bick and Puellemann each clouted a home run. Bick hit safely in nine consecutive games, leading his mates in this department.

SHIFTS ARE MADE IN BADGER LINE

Madison, Oct. 16.—Rumors of a radical change in the Badger line are floating out of Camp Randall, in spite of Coach Richards' policy of rigid secrecy in the practices. The line weakness which the team has shown in the last games of the season against Ripon and Marquette, is expected to be remedied.

Scott, veteran tackle, who started in 1917, has been shifted to guard, it is said, and Brader, former end, will play at tackle. Paul Meyers is now occupying regularly, the right end berth.

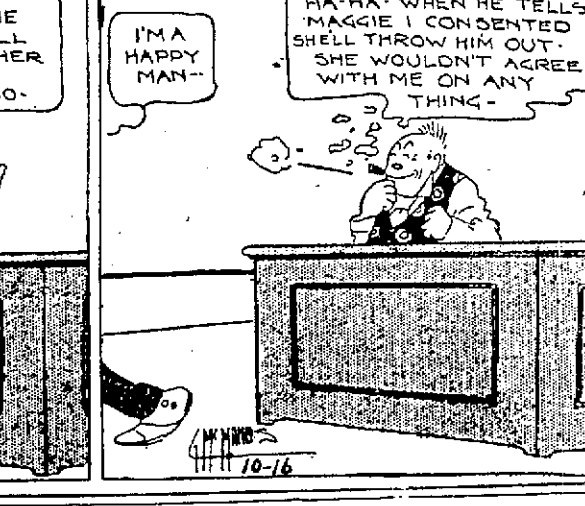

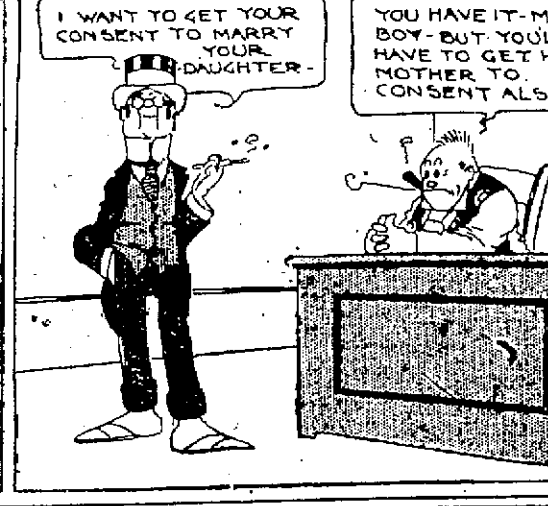

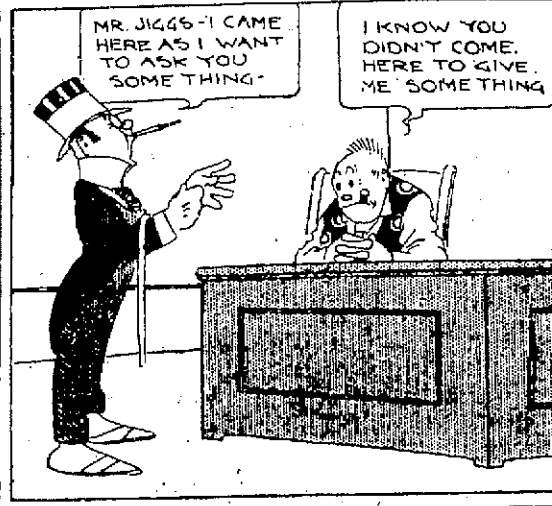

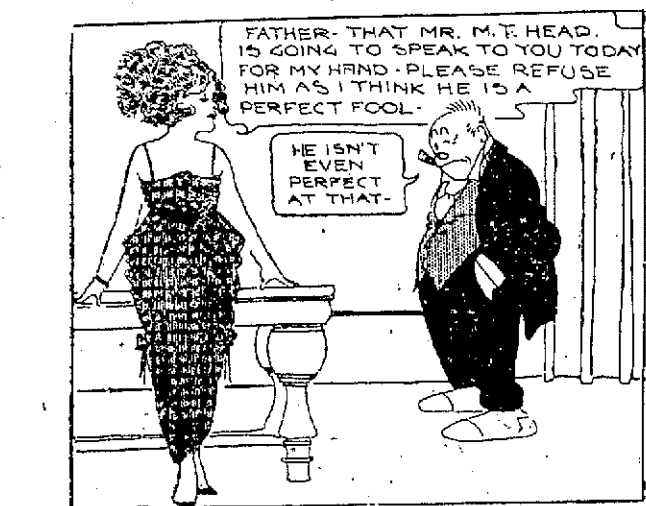

Several hundred Wisconsin university students will travel to Evanston next Saturday with the team to witness the game with Northwestern. It was definitely learned last night that Bob Koehler, star fullback of the Northwestern university football team, will be able to play in the game against Wisconsin.

Koehler was injured in the game against De Pauw Saturday. He appeared for practice yesterday and participated in a scrimmage against the freshman team. Although he did not stay in the scrimmage long.

TACK CAUSES DEATH

London.—Following a scratch on his arm by a tack from a carpet which he was removing from a floor James Nalfe, of Camden Tower, died in a local hospital from blood poisoning.

A much larger turn-out for the Monroe game is expected, as interest is mounting at school. "Fuss" Flarce will have charge of the laxer exercises at the game Saturday.

The field was marked off during practice yesterday afternoon and today, the field will be lined before Saturday, thus doing away with the difficulty experienced in the Delavan game.

THE WISHING PLANE

When night finally came the men who were keeping Jack and Jane in the cellar lighted some candles. The little light they shed made the floor and corners of the cellar clearer than the light which had leaked in through the small window during the afternoon. The light from the window had been barely enough to show Jack and Jane the men's faces. By the candle light the children could see that the only things in the cellar were some old empty boxes and kegs. They noticed that the cellar floor was full of little puddles of dirty water. It finally took four beats for these boys to be declared the winner.

The walls of the cellar—which was about as big as an ordinary room—were built of stone, Jack noticed. The one little window at one end was the only opening of the cellar. Besides the door through which the children had been dropped, Jack busily trying to think of some way by which he and Jane could run.

These bundles they opened and from them took some children's clothes—the kind the little Italian children wore. The clothes were ragged and dirty.

Put these clothes on," said one of the men in a gruff voice to Jack and Jane. "Put them on and get ready for them now and the dirty appearance of the clothes made Jack and Jane hesitate. Another one of the men stepped over to the box on which they sat and grabbing each one by the arm, jerked them over near the candle lights and the clothes. "Now hurry up."

Clean Hen Houses—ADVICE TO FARMERS

"Clean" the hen house now is the advice which County Agent R. T. Glasco was today asked to give Rock county farmers by the state college of agriculture. He has received a bulletin relative to the subject and urges farmers to note the contents. The bulletin follows:

"The poultryman who hopes to have healthy birds this winter should see that the winter laying quarters are perfectly clean and disinfected before shutting up his pullets. This fresh air means a healthy flock this winter."

"Any of the common disinfectants used as spray will put the poultry house in good condition. All sick hens should be disposed of in the fall, the cellar and the house should be kept in close winter quarters. This spreads rapidly and disastrously. This is especially true of such diseases as tuberculosis with which the bird may become affected in the summer and not really show the disease until the beginning of the heavy egg-laying season in the late winter or early spring, when the loss in egg production will be distinctly felt."

All cracks and crevices should be sprayed carefully to destroy parasites, and cracks or loose places under buildings, corn cribs, and other hiding places, should be cleaned out, or poultry netting placed over them to keep the hens from entering.

"It is reported that poultry diseases are increasing in sections of Wisconsin. More hens are going light because of tuberculosis than before. The chief preventive of tuberculosis are cleanliness, sunlight and fresh air. Fowls that have been raised on a clean range and are now put in clean houses will run slight chance of developing the disease unless sick birds are put in with them."

"Clean the poultry house and give the hens a chance to earn their feed by producing a large number of high priced eggs this winter."

Why Go to Palm Beach? Balm in York State

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]

New York—What's the use of going to Palm Beach or the tropics this winter? They're sprouting apple blossoms in New York this fall.

Just now, when blustery winds should begin to moan through leafless trees this section of the country is enjoying real California weather. Overcasts are among the least of the troubles in the world and even medium weight underwear is uncomfortable.

And to top things off, Jacob Schulman, of Orange county, has announced that his apple trees have started to blossom anew. To show that his announcement is bona fide, he has sent a spray of blossoms to one of the big morning papers here.

Farmers Comb State for Barrels to Store Cider

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]

Portsmouth, N. H.—This section of the state is being combed for cider barrels or anything in the form of a receptacle that will hold apple juice. The apple juice, which used to retail for 15 cents a gallon, now brings 80 cents for the same measure.

While the situation looks good to the farmers for big money, they are not so sure about the cider. The treasury department gives out notice through the internal revenue offices of what is coming to the government as a tax on every gallon of the apple juice sold as a beverage.

At the opening of today's stock market, shipping and foreign exchange speculation was the most advanced. Petroleum stocks were the most conspicuous, with the American Petroleum Corporation's stock leading the list. The corporation consisting of 16,000 shares at a gain of 2½ points. Mexican Petroleum, which had a 100-point gain in the previous session, was also prominent. Preferred and American International Petroleum Corporation's stock were also strong. Steel and equipment, also rather strong, were variable at the outset, but the latter was high within the first half hour.

Attention shifted to slender proportions, but the higher rate for call money, but reactions among speculators were particularly strong. Steel was among the striking exceptions, there being a high reaction.

There was less speculation than the more speculative issues.
